

Pokemon Mega Dex

A list of all Mega Pokemon in Phemenon

This Booklet is a compiled version of all Mega Pokemon currently in the World of Phemenon. Mega Evolution is considered the last stage of Evolution that a Pokemon can undergo, provided it hasn't already been altered by the environment such as Regional Pokemon, Ultra Pokemon or Aberrations. For full information look further in this Document or in the Phemenon Campaign Handbook.

MEGA EVOLUTION INFO

Mega Evolutions are meant to be the final stage within a Pokémon's Growth and Evolution cycle. This form is said to be the ultimate strength of a Pokémon, and shows a significant bond between the Trainer and its partner. Unlike the games however, Mega Evolution is a permanent form change and can only be removed by de-leveling a Pokémon. There are currently a few methods of obtaining a Mega Evolution:

- Spending 30 Honor to create a Variant Mega Form (Which allows a free evolution to that form)
- Spending 10 Honor to Mega Evolve a Pokémon to an existing form in the Mega Dex
- Spending 5 Honor to Mega Evolve a Pokémon that is Cherish Bonded or has 50 Loyalty Points
- Using a Mega Crystal to Mega Evolve a Pokémon to an existing form in the Mega Dex
- Reward for a Fable Request or Narratively impactful Request within Moderator Discretion.

Here are additional rules of Mega Evolution:

■ A Trainer can only have one Mega Evolution in their Party at a time. The spiritual bond is too straining otherwise to have multiple.

■ A Pokémon with less than 0 Loyalty Points cannot Mega Evolve as it doesn't have trust in its Trainer. A Pokémon must be at least Level 60 to Mega Evolve and must be listed in the Mega Dex.

■ Aberrations, Fakemon and Regional forms cannot Mega Evolve, their anatomy and genetic structure is too warped to be able to evolve the same way a normal Pokémon of their species would be able to. However the listed Pokémon can Mega Evolve into a Variant Mega Form if one is created and appropriate to that Aberration's current form.

Example: An Electric Charizard can't evolve into mega Charizard but can gain a higher variant form.

Note: This includes Regional forms such as Alolan Raichu as well, despite being a canon Pokémon. They function similarly lore wise to Aberrations, being a regional alteration to the norm.

■ Some Pokémon cannot Mega Evolve due to various reasons. Pre-Evolved Pokémon cannot Mega Evolve, as they're still infantile. Ultra Beasts such as Naganadel are already considered in their highest power.

■ Through sheer determination and willpower, some Wild Pokémon can Mega Evolve. This is only possible for Raid Boss Template Pokémon. If a Mega Pokémon is captured this way it reverts to normal form, as the bond from the Pokéball restricts the circumstances of which it gained its form.

■ Legendary Pokémon may also Mega Evolve. However this is through a process called Primal Reversion, and allows the Legendary to revert to their Primal Form, a state in which they are exceedingly powerful. They only change to their Primal Form if their lives are in danger or they're risking their lives for a cause, as it is extremely volatile and possibly damaging to their domain. However this form allows them to exceed far beyond normal capabilities. This is only applicable to Greater and Almighty Legendaries.

VARIANT MEGA INFO

While Mega Evolution is a natural process of maximum power, sometimes the bond between a Trainer and a Pokémon can alter the final Evolution of a Pokémon. Considering the power is mostly gained through the connection and bond of a Trainer, its form will usually be unique and reflective of the one who trained it. When choosing a Mega Form for a Pokémon they can choose between any standard Mega Evolution, or they may create a Variant Mega Evolution that is unique to their Trainer.

Variant Mega Forms are created with 30 Honor unless specified otherwise (Ex: Some narrative situations may have your Typhlosion Mega Evolve if it fits narratively as a Reward, albeit rare). There are a few restrictions as well in order to choose a Variant Mega Form, each of which will be listed below the Dex Entry, but here are the standard restrictions

■ The Variant form must be a reflection of your Trainer and not just a different form. If your Trainer is a Chemist, its variant form could be more toxic in nature and even be a poison type. This should be used to signify a bond with the trainer, not just give a mega to an aberration. While Aberrations have movelist changes as well, Variant Forms can also be used like Type Sync, ultimately they react to one of your Trainer Classes and change forms accordingly.

■ Examples: My Trainer is a Hunter and Marksman. I've trained a lot with my Slowbro in order to stay in the backlines and snipe alongside my while my allies take the front line. My Variant Slowbro's mega evolution may increase its Ranged X Attacks by +2m and gain the Targeting System Ability, alongside +4 Special Attack and Attack and +2 Defense.

Variant Mega Charizard Example: The Trainer is a Dragon Ace, Commander or Herald of Pride
